FOREWORD

He that governs leads the blind, but he that teaches gives them eyes.

We inherited our positions as students in this college community from those who came before. We have dug our roots deeply into its soil as young saplings and were nourished and grew to the stateliness of seniors. Those things which we have begun will yet remain for others to continue. Our predecessors and professors pointed the way for us and now as we pass through the portals of this college into the world; it will be ours to say, "Dirego" I point the way, and translate it in our unique ways.

DEDICATION

JOHN T. McNULTY

A Senior bids farewell . . .

*These things I wish for you for our friendships' sake
A sunburnt thatch, a door to face the sun
At westering, the noise of homing rooks;
A kind, old lazy chair, a courtly cat
To rub against your knees;
Shelves of well chosen books;*

*I wish you friends whose wisdom makes them kind,
Well-leisured friends to share your evening's peace,
Friends who can season knowledge with a laugh;
A hedge of lavender, a patch of thyme,
With sage and marjoram and rosemary,
A damask rosebush and a hive of bees,
And cabages that hold the morning's dew,
A black bird in the orchard boughs --- all these,
And God bless you.*

Anonymous
1000 Years of Irish Poetry

We find it fitting to dedicate this page to the memory of John Fitzgerald Kennedy, not only because of the magnanimous position which he occupied in our world, but because of the lesson we have learned through his passing — the necessity of brotherhood and peace. Much has been revealed to us during our college life, but this, significant of our senior year, we did not learn from books; but rather, from an unjust act. What greater tribute can we now pay to this man and to this world but to carry on his spirit of universal brotherhood and peace. In this way only, can justice of any sort be rendered.

IN MEMORIAM

JOHN FITZGERALD KENNEDY
1917-1963

To the Class of 1964:

Another year has slipped away and another class has completed the four years of college.

You are now ready for your life's work as teachers of the youth of our country. You begin at a time of great need. All schools are filled to capacity and thousands more must be built as soon as possible. Our dynamic world also demands changes in the methods and programs of educating pupils from their initial school experiences to adulthood. You will not only be a part of this but I hope you will be among the leaders in the field.

I ask God to help you to meet this challenge.

Sincerely,

Eugene L. Greel

President

Experience is regarded as a source of knowledge. It is also spoken of as containing what is known. Sometimes it is identified with sense-perception; sometimes it involves more — memory and the activity of the imagination. Sometimes it includes thoughts, feelings, and desires as well, all the contents of consciousness, every phase of mental life.

Experience may connote something which is private or public, subjective or objective — something which no man can share with another. Experience is said to be also that which makes a man expert in an art or in a sphere of practical activity. A man is better able to do or make that which he has much experience in doing or making. He is better able to judge what should be undertaken or what has been accomplished by others as well as by himself. Ultimately, experience is something to be enjoyed for its own sake, serving no end beyond itself unless it be the enrichment of life by the widest variety of experience.

North Adams Chenail Sets Pace Against Waterbury

North Adams State College opened its 1963-64 basketball season with a not too impressive win over the Waterbury branch of the University of Connecticut, 77-72, at Hoosac Hall gym.

A packed house watched the inaugural of the court season in Northern Berkshire.

Fouls Decide

Foul shooting made the difference last night as Coach George Jarck's Mohawks dropped in 19 of 31 charity tosses against 10 for 22 by the visitors.

Waterbury outscored the home team from the floor, 31-29. The lid is on could well be the theme last night as both teams, obviously suffering from first game jitters, hit rather poorly from the floor. North Adams made good of 29 of 90 shots or 30 per cent and Waterbury connected on 31 of 85 about 36 per cent.

Height was not a factor last night as neither side floored what could be called a tall team. In the first half Waterbury was in control of the boards, but the picture was reversed in the second half.

Jim Chenail, labeled "the big fellow" by the Waterbury players when they huddled with their coach, Jim Nemec from time to time during the game, was the pace setter for the Mohawks in scoring, 17 points on six baskets and five fouls and in rebounds.

Capt. Frank Zoltek rallied from a very cold first half to pump in 13 the same as Ronnie Pietras. Bruce Gallagher hit for 11, 12, Timmy Carroll for 11 and Wayne Goodnow for 10.

Craig DeCerb was high for Waterbury with 16. Four other fellows hit double figures.

Rally Needed

North Adams had to come from behind to win, trailing throughout the first half until with about a minute left to play back-to-back baskets by Pietras and Goodnow sent the Mohawks to the dressing room, leading by one, 36-33.

Midway in the second half, the Mohawks got real hot for the first time and on a 10-point chain ran the count from 44-42 to 54-42. Baskets by Goodnow and Carroll a short time later gave the Mohawks their biggest spread, 58-45.

Waterbury came back strong in the closing minutes and with 1:47 left had cut the margin to three 71-68. Carroll's hoop and two foul shots by Zoltek gave the home five breathing room in the closing seconds.

North Adams played control ball for the most part in the final five minutes, preferring to move the ball around in a weave rather than go for the basket and this pattern made Waterbury commit fouls.

North Adams will be at home next Saturday night to the Alumni.

Kennedy Tribute

At the request of John J. Komorek of the faculty who was in charge of the public address system, the entire assemblage stood in silence for one minute at the start of the second half in tribute to the late President John F. Kennedy.

North Adams Ready For Castleton Visit

North Adams 84, Windham 66

North Adams State College Mohawks sharpened their tomahawks for the Castleton, Vt. invasion tomorrow night by whipping Windham, Vt., State College last night for the second time this season. It was an easy victory, too easy perhaps to satisfy Coach George Jarck.

... If it should win tomorrow night, and it will be the favorite, North Adams will be odds favorite to win the Northern division title because after that comes Keene and Johnson, Vt. both here and not regarded as able to give the Mohawks too much of a test. North Adams is 8-2 in the Conference and riding the top of the crest.

Castleton Game

One of the two defeats suffered by the Mohawks this season was up in Castleton and the local team is more than anxious for revenge.

In winning last night, its 14th for the season against two losses and its 17th straight on the home court, the Mohawks started out early to do a job on Windham a team they like to beat, and hardly had the clock started moving before North Adams was scoring.

An 11-point skein sending the score to 25-11 left no doubt as to what the final outcome would be. At half time, North Adams led, 45-19.

The home team tapered off in the final half and Windham scoring perked up a bit, but the lead was never in danger.

North Adams hit on 31 of 72 shots for .43 per cent, Windham 24 of 71 for .33 per cent. The Mohawks shot an amazing 76 per cent from the free line, 20 of 26, Windham 16 of 28 for 57 per cent. The Mohawks grabbed 35 rebounds to 21 for Windham.

Mohawks Score At Danbury State

Although sluggish and playing below par, North Adams State College Mohawks survived a long old bus drive and an even colder shooting night to down Danbury State College, 73-60, last Danbury trailing. At half time the score was tied 26-26.

Zoltek led the scorers with 21, Carroll had 18. Joe Spinazola also hit double figures, 13.

Eight-Year $6.16 Million Program for College Expansion Outlined

Campus to Grow to 30 Acres, Enrollment Near 1,200 Seen

By EDWIN MATESKY

Dr. John Gillespie, director of state colleges in Massachusetts, last night outlined an eight-year, $6.16 million expansion program for North Adams State College to some 50 persons gathered for a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of Greater North Adams.

The estimated $6.16 million cost is broken into $5.38 million for construction, $280,000 for planning and $500,000 for land purchase costs.

As explained by Dr. Gillespie, with the aid of maps, by 1971 the college campus would be increased from its present five acres to 30 acres and the student enrollment from the present 600 to between 950 and 1,200.

Campus Boundaries

If the plan is realized the campus' new boundaries would be Blackinton Street on the north; and, approximately, the Bond Street line on the south; Ashland Street on the west and Church Street on the east.

And that's only the first phase. After that, Dr. Gillespie explained as the population of high school graduates increases over the years so, too, will it be necessary to further expand the college.

It is likely the college would expand to the west, toward the Boston & Albany and Boston & Maine Railroad tracks which, he said, would have to be relocated.

Someone in the audience asked if any thought had been given to relocating the college on land which wouldn't have to be condemned.

No, said Dr. Gillespie, if the college were to be relocated it would be relocated out of North Adams. There is too much of an investment already at the present site, he added, mentioning the recently-built $1.5 million gymnasium and classroom building.

"It's either here or nowhere," he said.

He emphasized at the beginning of his 90-minute presentation that the Master Plan "is not final and is subject to modification as time goes on."

Assisting Dr. Gillespie with explanation was Dr. Eugene L. Freel, president of the college.

Proposed Construction

To accommodate the increased student enrollment, the following facilities would be added:

- A women's dormitory and dining hall for 200 students and transformation of the present Taconic Hall, a women's dormitory, into a dormitory for 104 men.

- A classroom building which would include administration offices.

- Purchase of Mark Hopkins School and adjacent land from the city, modernize it, install observation TV and one-way glass and, according to Dr. Gillespie, "make it a truly experimental school."

- A separate library building.

- A wing to the gymnasium so a swimming pool could be added.

- A student union building.

- A men's dormitory and a second women's dormitory.

Source of Funds

How do you pay for it? Dr. Gillespie asked, then answered his own question.

The General Court, he said, must appropriate much of the money.

Another factor includes the recently enacted federal Higher Education Facilities Bill which would provide one-third of the cost of an academic building if that building were to be used as a library, for science or foreign languages and if the building would substantially increase enrollment, he said.

"Thus the federal government, we hope, would pay for a third of the library building," Dr. Gillespie said.

He added the nine-member State College Building Authority will also enter the picture because it will build the second women's dormitory and the proposed men's dormitory.

The Authority has been empowered by the legislature to raise money on bond issues which would be paid off through the room rent payments of students.

The General Court would make a direct appropriation to buy Mark Hopkins School, he added.

And he said, "This is really not a pipe dream but is a very real possibility."

Funds Available

Later it was explained funds are now available for the construction of a central power plant, at $1,015,000, and for the planning, at a cost of $75,000, of the first women's dormitory.

Donald A. Thurston, president of the Chamber, asked, now that money has been appropriated for these purposes, "when will something happen?"

Three architectural firms — Anderson & Nichol, on the boiler plant; Alderman & Jacoby, on the dormitory; and James Lawrence, on a study plan for the classroom building and library — have already been appointed, Dr. Freel said.

And he added, pointing to the map, the timetable depends on the acquisition of 2½ acres of land.

There are eight property owners in the area, Dr. Freel said, of which five have agreed to sell and three haven't. Condemnation proceedings will probably take place or else the reluctant property owners will be by-passed, he added. The state attorney general's office is supposed to be working on the deed, he said.

Dr. Gillespie said he hoped the boiler plant could go up this year, the women's dormitory next year and a building every year thereafter until the master plan, which he also called the "first phase," is complete.

Boiler Plant First

Early in the discussion Dr. Gillespie said "everything depends on the boiler plant — the focal point of importance. Thanks to Rep. (Roger A.) Sala, who has been indefatigable in promoting North Adams State College, the boiler plant will be under way shortly."

Isadore Shapiro of 132 Corinth St., who said his house would be very close to the boiler plant, asked if there will be "smoke and noise" from the plant. He hastily added he wasn't opposed to expansion of the college.

Someone said Bennington College recently constructed a boiler plant which "looks like a library" and Dr. Freel added he understood the architects would be asked to beautify the boiler plant and to make it attractive.

Questions Raised

No one appeared to be opposed to the plan but a number of questions were asked. Among them:

- What impact will the expansion have on the city's tax base if taxable properties are destroyed in the process? (George A. Lerrigo, hospital administrator)

- Dr. Freel said Geoffrey Baker of Technical Planning Associates of New Haven, Conn., which is planning the city's south side urban renewal program, or Paul C. Wilson, executive director of the North Adams Redevelopment Authority, could answer.

- Mr. Baker said he declined to comment off hand.

- Dr. Gillespie said initially, there would be a "substantial decrease in taxable revenue" and Dr. Freel added it is obvious an expansion will mean some loss.

But at the outset Dr. Gillespie mentioned that a survey of purchasing power of NASC students was made which showed the college's then 400-student enrollment was responsible for bringing about $385,000 a year into the community.

By 1971, with between 950 and 1,200 students, $1.5 million would be brought into the city and, he added, a $6 million
